Didsbury prepared in case of disaster says Wright

by Richard Westlund

To help alleviate some of the concerns local residents have about their safety over the past year, Director of Disaster Services Bob Wright addressed council about 2001 initiatives.

Wright said recent events have caused concern among Didsburians about what was being done locally to protect citizens.

"Since September 11, 2001 and with the G-8 Summit approaching, along with the increased amount of commodities moving through our community we are in a position to find ourselves much better prepared," said Wright.

Wright said the number of initiatives that have been undertaken locally has greatly improved the disaster services ability to work when faced with an emergency.

"I believe we are much more prepared than we were two years ago and much, much more prepared than we were four years ago," he said, adding that exercises have made municipal workers more up to speed.

In January, 2001, Disaster Services received $1,100 from Mountain View County to assist with materials and furnishings for the community room in the new Didsbury RCMP detachment.

The room is also used as the group's EOC (Emergency Operations Center) with the Didsbury Council Chambers acting as a back up site. The RCMP room is equipped with white boards, black boards, six phones, maps and stationery supplies, all of which are needed for an EOC room, said Wright.

In March the room was put through a test run as an E.O.C. workshop was held with two disaster scenarios being played out.

Thirty people participated in the exercise including one town councillor, four RCMP members, fire and EMS members and the community constable. "We found that the room worked quite well," said Wright.

Wright attended the 9-1-1 user group meeting in May, 2001, and voiced concerns that he feels were addressed for the most part. He said there is still some concern about dispatch reliability with some cell phones.

In November, 2001, an application was made for a Joint Emergency Preparedness Grant for $40,000 towards a rescue truck that would double as a Command unit in the event of a large incident. The grant was turned down this March.

In March 2002 a mock disaster took place near Carstairs with participation from Didsbury. The exercise led to some small changes being made to the rescue plan.

Wright said in April he and public works staff looked at, and discussed, their roles in the event of a disaster.

He added that public works staff has improved the security on the water distribution system and attended a seminar on the subject.

Disaster services also sent out pamphlets encouraging family planning in case of an emergency in preparation for National Emergency Preparedness Week which took place May 6 to 12.

Ross Ford teachers focus on high needs inclusion

Teachers attend workshops to learn different approaches of teaching all students

by Richard Westlund

When discussing what teachers wanted to address as part of the Alberta Initiative for School Improvement, Ross Ford teachers decided to address the issue of high needs students.

Teachers of the elementary school have embarked on an initiative over the last two years to make high needs students feel included in the classrooms of the Didsbury Elementary school.

"We wanted to include high needs students better in the classroom," said first-year coordinator of the project Laura Lee Hrabok. "We wanted them to do better in the school where they belong."

The major goal of the project, as outlined by project literature, is to "develop teaching strategies which provide educational services to all students in such a manner that all students belong and learn".

The strategies teachers at the school are using to accomplish the goal are done through co-operative learning, active learning and multiple intelligences.

"Developing teaching strategies, based on sound research, which will result in opportunities for all students to achieve their best," to the question of how teachers could ensure that all students were included in the classrooms and learning, according to the project's display.

Teachers at the school are meeting once a month, from four to eight hours at a time, and are teaching each other strategies to use to help include all students within their lesson plans.

During the session teachers go through learning drill acting as students to better understand the process they are instilling.

Hrabok said over 80 per cent of the teachers are participating in the project and so far the consensus on the project have been positive.

Speaking for herself, Hrabok said, "I believe in teaching again. I have my passion back."

The funding the Ross Ford project receives goes, for the most part, to hiring substitute teachers on the days the teachers meet with each other.

The project has just finished its second year of existence and will be headed by Tabitha Powell next year.

Writing skills a top priority for Westglen teachers

by Richard Westlund

Westglen teachers are hoping that by making the way students are taught English more consistent they will be more prepared for the next big step.

For their Alberta Initiative for School Improvement project, Westglen teachers decided to start an initiative that would see students learn and be graded English-wise throughout their years at Westglen school.

"One of the things that we found was happening is that teachers were doing it different ways," said Carolyn Massel, leader of the project. "Now when a Grade 5 student is introduced with a certain formula it is the same thing they will be using in Grade 8."

The project however is not just for Language Arts teachers. Social Studies, Science, Home Ec. and Shop teachers are among the others learning the system so that the consistency is not evident just from year to year but also from subject to subject.

The system the teachers at Westglen have decided to implement is the RAFTS system (Roles, Audience, Format, Topic, Strong Verbs).

From grade to grade the complexity of the writing expectations will change for obvious reasons and so will the way the system is taught to students. Massel said what will not change is the consistency from year to year.

The program has been in place for two years now and initial indications are showing students improved results in testing.

In the next couple of years, the Westglen teaching staff is planning to add reading skill to the same program, so they too will be taught consistently.

Massel said teachers, who meet on a regular basis to keep the project on the forefront of their minds, have been getting a lot out of the program too.

"I think it is making the teachers more confident."

The majority of the funding that goes to the program is spent on substitute teachers so the Westglen staff have the opportunity to get together and discuss the project. There is also a part time salary created for the workshop coordinator.

OPINIONS EDITORIAL

Their big day

RICHARD WESTLUND
EDITORIAL

The week before Didsbury students walked across the stage at the arena, I received phone calls from parents of graduating students voicing their disgust at the local teachers' decision to not help or be a part of the ceremonies.

And the teachers, for the most part, were visibly missing from the proceedings. A few teachers attended as spectators and even fewer did give a hand to the students and were recognized at the grad for their effort.

According to Steve Thompson, principal of Didsbury High School, teachers took a vote on whether they were going to withdraw voluntary services. He said teachers agreed they wouldn't offer voluntary services, as part of the ongoing contract dispute they have with the Chinook's Edge School division and the province, who has taken a role in the proceedings.

I know that some teachers wanted to be at the ceremonies to watch the kids they have been teaching for years graduate. And in some cases pressure to tow the union line would have prevented some teachers from helping out. I will not fault any teacher for that.

But the teachers that did show up for the grad class, the ones that helped in the organizing and the elementary teachers that sent packages of old assignments were truly courageous.

The students have spent 12 years preparing for this one evening and the teachers that showed up despite the pressures they felt at the time, and still feel, showed the students that they cared enough to put their necks on the line.

The students should be proud of themselves for the work they have done to make their grad a success.

The decorations were fantastic at the arena and at Westglen School. Congratulations on a worthy achievement.

Wonderings of the heart

"To Dad"

by Margaret Fradley

How can we make "fathers day" special? How can we let "Dad" know he is appreciated and needed. How can we best show him we love him?

Recently our son-in-law had to be away for five days, when we visited them, I said to their three year old "Honey, I'll bet you missed Daddy when he was away", he immediately replied by saying "Yes, Mamma, because you know I need my Daddy too".

Will a tie do the trick? A card or dinner out? I think this is a good time to reflect on how much and how important Dad is.

Can we bring to mind those 'special times' with Dad; the fun times, maybe even the 'not so fun times', but times spent together; times Dad supported us, drove us back and forth from sporting and other events. The time perhaps when he taught us to drive; the times we needed him most and he was there for us. Have there been times when we have taken 'good old Dad' for granted?

Are we able to go to our fathers and share some of these special memories with him? We need to let our Dads know we need and love them, not just one day of the year, but the whole year around. Let's take a moment to think about it, to remember Dad and what he means to us, and then go and share our hearts with him. Have a special day all you Dads, we appreciate you.

Government as banker?

The evidence shows a bad idea

Recently the Canadian Taxpayers Federation (CTF) released a study of twelve years of financial assistance authorized by the Canada Economic Development for the Regions of Quebec (CED-Q). CED-Q is one of four federal regional development agencies. The other three are the Atlantic Canada Opportunities Agency (ACOA), Western Economic Diversification (WED) and FEDNOR for Northern Ontario.

Using data obtained through Access to Information the CTF found that hundreds of millions of dollars were disbursed to profitable businesses, chambers of commerce, government agencies and individuals.

The CTF report on CED-Q examined funding activities from fiscal year 1989-1990 through to 2000-2001. During this period some $1.78 billion was disbursed through 8,965 separate allocations. From this data, the CTF determined that:

Over $1.4 billion or 81% of all funds disbursed were in the form of non-repayable contributions and subsidies;

$817 million or 46% of all funds were doled out to small, medium and large Quebec businesses including corporate players such as SR Telecom, Johnson and Johnson, Ingersol-Rand Canada, and Siemens;

Transfers to federal, provincial and municipal institutions (some which are not subject to Access to Information or Freedom of Information) accounted for over $149 million;

The biggest recipient of funds was ski destination Station Mont-Tremblant which received $48.9 million in contributions;

Associations, unions, and chambers of commerce receive over $154 million;

Over $119 million was disbursed to tourism initiatives, golf courses, bicycle manufactures, festivals and hotels;

CED-Q contracts contain a photo-op clause pointing to the political motives that drive funding decisions;

Over $10 million was disbursed through a special program to the fashion industry; and

One-third (33%) of CED-Q's $351 million loan portfolio has already been written off.

The government says these programs create jobs. But with 33% of all loans already written off, this claim is dubious. And if Company A gets a hand-out, how many jobs are lost at competitor Company B that does not? The government should not be playing venture capitalist with tax dollars because:

1) Market decisions should be made by the market, NOT by politicians and bureaucrats.

2) Corporate Welfare is NOT driven by market imperatives. It is driven by regional and political concerns.

3) Selecting winners and losers is NOT a task to which government officials are well suited. They have neither the knowledge nor the experience to make investment decisions.

4) Corporate welfare creates a culture of dependency. Instead of seeking out the next market opportunity, our entrepreneurs become "grantpreneurs" in search of the next government cheque.

5) Corporate welfare is not a public good. Every dollar given to a business is a dollar taken not available for debt reduction, infrastructure or health care.

Prosperous jurisdictions around the globe have abandoned the regional subsidies approach. Canada should do the same and wind-up CED-Q and its sister regional agencies in favour of broad-based business tax reductions as a better means of fostering economic growth.

Fatal accident act needs to be looked at carefully

To Whom it may concern,

Hello my name is Kim Thompson, and I would like to take a few minutes of your time to tell you about a very important matter that is being decided and changed without a lot of people knowing. It is a matter that may affect you someday, but I truly hope that you never have to experience it. Right now our government is trying to pass a bill that is making it cheaper to Kill than to Maim.

Let me explain. There is the "Fatal Accident Act, the Survival Act and Bill C20." What these acts are as follows: Bill C20 - it will increase the amount awarded from $48,000 to $75,000 in the event of wrongful death of a child...once liability is established which is an extremely long and arduous legal battle. But on the other hand they take away the right to claim other compensation through civil litigation with the other 2 Acts. Under the "Survival of Actions Act", the estate of the deceased is entitled to recover any "actual financial loss" that the deceased would have been able to recover had the loved one not been deceased. Under the "Fatal Accidents Act", a defined set of individuals, (husband, wife, mother, son and daughter) are entitled to recover for grief and loss of the guidance, care and companionship "that resulted from the deceased death. These Acts involve and include bereavement damages, and the financial loss. Now that our government is working with insurance companies to change these acts. These changes are: defendants will only be liable if they wrongfully caused the death, also the $75,000 is now to be shared by all eligible parents and children. These amendments would among many other things abolish any claim for loss of future earnings in cases involving death of a minor. They would eliminate the estates worth and future earnings of that deceased. These amendments would also eliminate dependents over the age of 18 from having a claim in the event of the wrongful death of a qualified adult. For a complete copy of the proposed amendments call your local Politician.

What does this mean to you?? Well Lord willing you will never be affected. But let me break it down...What is your child's life worth??? Now the VISA commercial tells us that getting up at 5 a.m. to take your son to hockey practice is priceless and that buying your daughter a princess dress is priceless too, but when your children have become deceased our government is limiting what a parent or sibling can claim as they try to live with that dear loved one gone.

To me this gets even more personal, you see on Sept. 4, 1998 my husband and my only 2 children were all killed when they struck a car that was travelling 22 kms on highway #2 near Leduc. The driver was charged. I watched this accident happen before my eyes and was miraculously spared with only minor injuries. To my shock, 2 weeks after the accident I found out that I was pregnant with my late husbands child, a child we had never planned. My miracle baby is 3 years old now and we are still going to court over this. You see, my late husbands child is what the insurance companies and their lawyers would refer to as a "fetus" at the time of the accident and has no rights to his 36 yr. old fathers estate, his 5 yr old brothers estate, or his 3 yr. old sisters estate. If this new act comes into play he would have no bereavement issues because he never knew them.

Well I guess what I am is a survivor. My son Jacob is a survivor too. I honestly know that all the money in the world would not bring them back or help me get through a day with out missing them or shedding a tear. To me its personal, how can I remember the good times when I am forced to have to rely that day as long as the court drags this on.

Its funny you know, Insurance companies will award $$$$$$ if you spill hot coffee on yourself at McDonalds but when your children are killed they are considered to be worth less than a new pick-up truck. I do agree that maybe there should be some caps put into place but not here in the death of what is left of my life. Lets go for a stupidity clause like in the good old days...You trip and hurt yourself in a store than don't be so clumsy...at least you are still alive thanks to Premier Klein and the Insurance companies you are still worth something then. I hope that you also realize that no matter what insurance rates will and are going up.

Thank you for your time.
Kim Stauffer-Thompson

Principal should have been at grad ceremonies

"To All the Grads of 2002"

Hooray! You've finally done it. "All the best to you." I did go to the ceremonies at the D.H.S. on Saturday & I thought the students did a wonderful job on decorating & organizing their grad. Hats off to all of you. One thing I thought that was very rude & unthoughtful was that there was no "Principal" there to congratulate the class. Surely you would think that the "Principal" of D.H.S. could come & give his congrats to the students. Special thanks to the Gr. 11's who gave the presentations to the grads.

ENVIRONMENT

Outdoor enthusiasts should respect environment

My family loves the outdoors. On weekends we regularly travel west to the area around Fallen Timber and Burnt Timber Creeks and the Red Deer River in the Forestry Reserve. We do day trips and overnights. We hike and explore a lot, fish a little, take pictures and enjoy the quiet. All of this takes a lot of energy so we drink a lot of tea, munch on chocolate chip/oatmeal cookies and eat hot dogs, beans, grilled pork chops etc.

We have learned by sad experience not to visit our favorite spots on the long weekend in May. Grad parties. I appreciate the attraction of letting loose after a long year of senior high school. But I wish the grads themselves and their parents had to clean up the mess they leave. We drove into the area the weekend after the parties. First we saw beer cans, pop cans and beer bottles dotting the roadside. We visited several campsites to see what condition they were in. In one, the beverage tins were piled high on the fire pit and charred, I suppose, by the last coals of the fire. In two others the fire pits were plugged by the broken glass of many bottles. Garbage was partly burned. One enterprising group bagged their garbage and left the bags piled beside the camping area. I didn't know there was garbage pick-up in the bush!

We stopped to stretch our legs at one of our favorite spots, where Burnt Timber Creek joins the Red Deer River. Someone had relocated the fire ring into the middle of a parking spot and generously sown the ground with broken glass. Wannabe Paul Bunyans had used axes to hack down five living trees, spruce and poplar, 12

ROBERT AUSTIN
GREEN MATTERS

- 15" in diameter; I guess the boys had to impress the girls or vice-versa. Then we took a short walk to a neighboring campsite. Just over 50 yards along a path through the large spruces cushioned by the needle fall of years, this is what we saw: two beer cans and a pop can, a used sanitary pad beside the path, and four little wads of white toilet paper 15 to 20 feet off the path. Would you drop these things outside your living room in the hall of your own home? If these are our grads then either in home or school they have not been taught basic behaviour. How much effort does it take to carry a shovel in your vehicle and bury your waste? Or just lift the layer of moss, do the necessary and replace the moss.

Please grads, to show your maturity, take some responsibility and behave in a thinking, civilized manner.

Now to the puzzle of ATV's. These chubby tired, low slung, Go anywhere vehicles seem to have become the status symbol of many young to middle-aged men and some women. There is no question these machines are very useful on farm and ranch and naturally they save a lot of physical effort (exercise?) and shoe leather chugging along the bush roads and trails. So, to the conundrum - why must these drivers seek out the wet and swampy areas and churn them into seas of mud by repeated travel when often a good road or solid ground lie a stone's throw away? Is this the new macho thing? My machine can go through more mud than yours? Boy, did my gang ever chew up the swamp last weekend!

Waterfowl and shore-birds nest in these wet areas. Churning up the vegetative growth invites erosion and leaves ugly scars that, even if undisturbed, take years to heal. Just because you can charge through the bush almost at will does not mean you should.

Another serious problem with ATV's is the number of young children allowed to drive them unattended. Last weekend I saw a boy and girl, he about 10 or 12, she about 2 years younger, far from any adult supervision putting around some road-side meadows and back and forth across the traveled road. In order to reach the handlebars and controls the girl could only just lean back against the seat. I have seen pre-teens driving at speed down the middle of a hilly, winding road. It seems to me that driving these vehicles on public land and roads should require a regular driver's license.

More and more people seem to think they can behave as they will in the forest and no one will know the damage and pollution they leave. It is a sad commentary indeed on our civilized ways if in order to have fun and recreation we must damage or destroy parts of our living environment.

Innisfail RCMP report that on Friday the 7th of June, at approximately 1:00 p.m., five children between the ages of 9 and 11 yrs of age where placed on inner tubes to float on the Little Red Deer river in the Red Lodge Park area. RCMP were contacted roughly 4 hours later advising that the children had not been seen since their departure. Family, local area residents, the Bowden Fire Dept and the RCMP located all the children in good shape, however cold and slightly shaken shortly after arriving in the area.

This incident has a happy ending but parents are reminded that any such adventure should be thoroughly checked out prior to its undertaking and children should not be put on the water without lifejackets.

POWER STRUGGLE

Residents demand answers from power suppliers

Olds residents have questions about power prices

by Carla Victor

Lyle Gorsline is hoping thousands of people attend the Town Hall meeting, organized for people who do not know why their power bills are skyrocketing.

Gorsline is hoping everyone who is as frustrated as he is will come and voice their concern to representatives from Enmax and Utilicorp and anyone else who will accept an invitation from the town to attend. It is huge power bills and unanswered questions that have instigated this town meeting, said Kris Bojda, town councillor.

"We have invited Murray Smith, provincial energy minister, and representatives from Enmax and Utilicorp. As of this morning (June 10) we have confirmation from Enmax that there will be one of their representatives at the meeting," said Bojda. He said the meeting will be an information night, so people can have answers to their questions. Representatives will be given 10 to 15 minutes to explain current billing practices and then a Q&A period to follow. Gorsline will be armed with many questions. He would like anyone who has a problem with the price of electricity to voice their concerns. "Deregulation isn't working," said Gorsline. "I hope 2,000 people come out to voice their concerns because one voice doesn't send a message strong enough. We need to let the powers-that-be know we are not content with the power situation," said Gorsline. Mayor Norma Duncan said this meeting is so people can understand what is happening with their electricity bills.

"Our goal here is not to provide the utility companies with a soapbox to promote their product, but to provide factual answers that satisfactorily address the concerns raised by our citizens." The meeting will be held at Olds Town Hall council chambers, June 13 at 7 p.m.

In a letter from Director of Community Services for the Town of Didsbury Rhonda Hunter, that announced the additional $2,500 in funding, the program was likened to that of a daycare.

"The board (feels) that it has not been clearly identified in your initial application, nor in your appeal, as to how the current JDDF program is different than a daycare program. As indicated previously daycares are not eligible for FCSS funding."

Pelletier said the application was submitted the same way it has in previous years before the deadline at the end of January. She said the only difference on the application was that the number of children using the program had gone up.

In order to remain as is for the rest of the year, Pelletier said the group needs an additional $4,000 minimum. To improve their program they are hoping for an additional $7,000.

In an interview with the Review, Hunter said the decisions made by the FCSS board are made on a year by year basis and that each application is considered carefully.

Hunter said more applications for FCSS funding came into the board this year and that the board is responsible for spreading out the funds as they see appropriate.

In the meantime, said Pelletier, the group is dealing with uncertainty.

"Right now we are supposed to be taking new application. But we don't know if the program will be running next year."

Outreach Grads celebrated for reaching milestones

by Richard Westlund

The Didsbury Outreach Class of 2002 celebrates their graduation by throwing their caps into the air. The ceremonies took place on June 6, 2002 at the Elks Hall.

Sixteen graduates with sixteen individual stories walked across the stage at the Elks hall, making it the most ever graduating from the Didsbury Outreach School. In a personal mid-day ceremony graduates were recognized for achieving their Alberta High School Diplomas.

The Didsbury Outreach school was started in 1995 making the 2002 class the seventh so far.

"It's an honour to be here to celebrate the accomplishments of our students," said teacher Carol McWilliams in her welcome of the event.

Principal Ian Hector said he was proud of every student that made the effort to finish their diploma and made the walk across the stage. "I applaud your courage and your ability to stick to your goals," he said. "For many grads the road to achieving your diploma was a difficult one."

Pat St. John said the Outreach School is an alternative school and students should not be categorized as being a part of the program.

"The Outreach Program has some challenged students and some very gifted students," he said.

St. John explained the school is one without the normal "conflicts" found at a more traditional school. Students create their own timetable, come as often or a little as they like and if they want they can do their course work at home. The school offers the same high school courses as the Didsbury High School.

"There are no timetables, schedules or bells," he said. "Students are encouraged to find what's best for them."

He added that some of the students are older and are trying to complete their diploma while holding down a full-time or part-time job. "When kids come in we try to get them to take charge of their education," said St. John.

Didsbury graduates celebrated for achievement

by Richard Westlund

After 12 years of hard work, homework and life's trials, Didsbury's graduating class celebrated their high school careers.

Against the backdrop of the rain forest, the graduating class celebrated their achievement with the community at the Didsbury Memorial Arena on Saturday afternoon and then again in a more intimate setting at Westglen School.

For Didsbury High School student, who are ready to embark on life's next challenges, the celebration was a time to look back and into the future.

"Right now, most of us are thinking of little more than the future," said Valedictorian Robert McWhinney. "We may be panicking about our diploma examinations; we may be wondering where we can get that extra job so we can afford that apartment, or that year in college or university; we may be thinking about what exactly we want our lives to be changing into."

But McWhinney said it was just as important to look at the past and remember it.

"Don't forget staying up until all hours, doing an English assignment on beatniks for Mr. Jensen at the last minute, or, on the other hand, not staying up until all hours and handing in Grade 3 quality work instead. Don't forget those Grand March practices where you were forced to listen to The Lion Sleeps Tonight."

Following the valedictorian address the parents walked their graduates in to the middle of the arena floor. After the Parent March, the graduates showed off their gowns and tuxes during the Grand March.

The evening ceremonies included a supper for the graduates and their guests followed by speeches. Unlike previous years there was no toast to the teachers as most chose not to participate in the ceremonies.

In their toast to the graduating students, Grade 11 students Elizabeth Blakely and Tom Morgan said the Grade 12 students had been positive role models, despite a few slips.

"We feel there is much to live up to and wish to congratulate the graduates and offer our best to them."

Mike Williams and Lindsey Edwards replied on behalf of the grads.

"Enjoy your Grade 12 year," said Edwards. "It goes way too fast and it will be the best time of your life."

"Without you guys the year wouldn't have been as interesting," said Williams.

Stacey Hannah and Phil McNeil made the toast on behalf of the grads to the parents.

"It was the parents that gave us the support we needed throughout the years," said McNeil.

Rod Hannah and Theresa McNeil responded on behalf of the parents.

McNeil said the class has faced much adversity throughout their school years and she was proud of the group in the way they were always there to support each other.

Colin Wrightson was the guest speaker for the evening and complemented the graduating class for embracing diversity in themselves and the world around them.

Remembering my Dad on Father's Day

I am an orphan. I didn't become an orphan until I was well past middle age so I never qualified for Social Assistance, never had to live in an Orphanage and didn't get invited to the Orphan's Picnic but the definition of an orphan is, "child bereaved of parents" so that makes me an orphan and I hate it. I miss my Mom and Dad and since this is Father's Day I am especially missing my Dad.

Dad was born in 1901 in Alberta, before it was Alberta. His Birth Certificate says he was born at Ponoka North West Territories. His Mom died when he was 9 and Grandpa had to farm out the little kids but he kept the two oldest boys, Glen (my dad) and Fay with him. They lived very near the Battle River and the river was a big part of the boy's life. They swam, fished, rafted, hunted and explored in summer, trapped and skated in winter. In those days a lot of First Nations kids were using the river the same way. Most of them did not speak English so Glen and Fay learned Cree. Uncle Fay went to University and became a Pharmacist so he didn't use his Cree much but Dad lived at Ponoka which is near enough to Hobbema to maintain old friendships and he often exchanged pleasantries with the elders from the Reserve. We kids learned the Cree for "kicked by a bad horse," and "go away white man/woman." Very useful phrases when you want to irritate an officious adult.

Grandpa's child rearing philosophy was quite simple. As long as the boys behaved decently, were warmly clothed and well fed he didn't dwell upon the minor niceties. His one inflexible rule was that they be totally honest. "Johnston's never lie, chisel nor cheat." They went to school, worked from about the age of 10, totally idolized their Father and grew up into decent, honest, sweet, slightly unconventional men who cared deeply about family, friends and society.

Dad's first job was as assistant at Ponoka's first milkman. The man had a team and a few cows, right in town of course. With a horse and wagon he delivered milk to some of the local households and while the owner drove the horse, ten year old Glen trotted the containers of milk to the door. When Chautauqua or Stampede came to town the boys found lots of lovely jobs. Helping to set up tents and exhibits, selling candy for the travelling vendors, taking tickets for the side-shows.

They sold the fruits of their hunting and fishing skills to local restaurants and Dad developed a taste for Chinese food that lasted all his life. From his friends the MahPoys he learned enough Mandarin to conduct a simple conversation and when he was in his eighties we watched as he held a conversation with a totally delighted and amazed Chinese elder. All of us learned to count in Mandarin and most of us have taught this to our children and grandchildren.

From about the age of 11, and while still in school, he stayed at various farms to help with chores. He worked for families of German, French, Polish, Scandinavian, English and Welsh descent and everywhere he went he learned a few words of the language, absorbed a bit of the culture and ate their food. Some of the foods remained favorites all his life. He had an amazingly wide range of taste in food and no patience with a kid who whined, "I don't like this." You darn well ate what was set before you and if you didn't like turnips or sauerkraut that was your problem and you kept quiet about it and took only a small helping. Surprisingly this principle did not extend to Grandchildren and although his children had eaten enough rolled oats to float a Battleship Dad did not like it when I made my kids finish their porridge.

In about 1916 Dad rode horseback to Chinook Alberta where he began working on the farm of his brother-in-law and sister. On one of his trips home to visit his Dad he met Martha Mattern and they were married in 1924. They moved to their own farm at Chinook and were there for 10 years of drought, hail and grasshoppers. During that time Dad kept food on the table by hunting Coyotes with Greyhounds. They moved back to a farm at Ponoka and Dad farmed with horses, raised Percheron colts, dealt in horses, did veterinary work, was a blacksmith, farrier, and machinery repairman. He ran a well drilling outfit, logged, hunted, built roads using horses and a fresno, put up enormous woodpiles and was one of the original organizers for Social Credit. In 1952 he became a Social Credit member of the Legislature and retired undefeated in 1967. Until he was about 87 he made harness, wagons and oxcarts, trained horses and maintained an acre of raspberries.

Dad's child raising technique was much like his Father's was. He cared deeply for us without being too picky about it and he taught us a lot of things while we thought we were being entertained. He expected total honesty from his kids and we knew that he could and would die to defend us from any evil that this World had to offer. Mom adored him, we adored him. I miss him a lot. Happy Fathers Day.

Community support sought for 135th Canada Day celebration

July 1 is a day for celebration - this is Canada's 135th celebration in honour of Canada's Birthday. In years past, Didsbury has had various ways of celebrating Canada Day. The Town of Didsbury, since the beginning of May, has had a call out to the Community of Didsbury for volunteers to assist with fundraising and the organization of events for Canada Day. The response, as it stands right now, has been low; therefore, we have to explore other options for celebrating Canada's birthday.

An event as big as this needs community support, and with no response for involvement from the community, for this year, there will not be a Canada Day celebration held here in Didsbury this year. The only celebration in Didsbury will be a fireworks display.

We do not want Canada's birthday to go unrecognized, and we know that there are some people who do not want to celebrate this special occasion. We are excited about the alternative for Didsburians to celebrate July 1. A bus trip will be organized for us to celebrate with another small town. Cochrane has an amazing schedule of events starting at 11:00 a.m. with a youth parade. An art walk, fast gun demonstration and official flag raising ceremony lead up to the Canada Day Family Concert from 5:00 p.m. - 10:00 p.m.

Live entertainment starts at 6:00 p.m. featuring The Carsons, Gil Grand and Diane Chase. What an amazing line up! Concessions and a barbecue will be available.

Tickets to the concert will be $10.00, and the bus ride to Cochrane will be $8.00. Call 335-7369 to register for your spot on the bus!

Seating is limited...so call soon! And...don't forget to wear red and white!

West Didsbury 4-H winding down

by Cole Scheidt

Well, a busy 4-H year is winding down. Many shows and activities have happened since last writing so I will give you a run down of what we as a club have been involved in. On April 13, our club participated in Multi-Judging at the Olds Cow Palace. We judged heifers, dairy cows, hay, horses, and sheep. It's a good learning experience and our club are proud of both Dayna Hadway and Terri-Lynn Morton for their high placings. On May 11, we hauled our cattle into Didsbury for our Club Heifer Show & Mock Steer Show. This is good opportunity to give both animal and 4-H member a chance to go through the paces before attending the bigger shows. Dayna Hadway was presented with Grand Champion Female with Becca Scheidt receiving Reserve Grand Champion Female. May 18th we attended 4-H District Heifer show in Olds. Our club did well in placings and we had some fun. Most of our animals were on their best behavior, but there was one exception, no names will be mentioned though. On May 22 we braved the snow and cold and made our way to the Carstairs Arena with our Steers for our Annual Achievement Steer Show and Sale. West Didsbury's club champion goes to Sara Braun and Reserve to Katriona Richmond. Showmanship awards were presented to Dayna Hadway, Rebecca Scheidt for Juniors, Sara Braun and Randilee Fisher for Intermediate and for the Seniors, Rosemary Braun and Cass Hrabok. Our sale began at 6:30 with many buyers in the stands. West Didsbury 4-

H club would like to thank each and every steer buyer who attended this sale, they dug deep into their pockets to buy a steer and make a 4-H member happy. A detailed listing of buyers will follow. Some of our club travelled with their cattle to 4-H on Parade in Calgary which took place May 31-June 2. Our entire club participated in the Multi-judging with Dayna Hadway receiving a belt buckle for overall high points in the Junior level, Terri Morton and myself received coats for first placings in a class. For those showing and helping in Calgary the highlight is the dance on Saturday night which is what we all look forward to, no matter how tired we are, we catch our second wind. That's a quick run down of our events, it has been a busy month. Once again I would like to take the time to thank all the sponsors and steer buyers for their generous support by purchasing a show or carcass steer. With out people like you 4-H would not be the success that it is. Thank you!

Campbell's LABELS FOR EDUCATION Drive

Just Done For Fun Society is asking students, parents, teachers, and friends in the community to support us by collecting Campbell's product labels and proofs-of-purchase. Just Done For Fun will earn valuable educational resources by redeeming labels from Campbell's products.

Campbell's products eligible for redemption include Campbell's Condensed Soups, Campbell's Chunky Soups, Campbell's Ready to Serve Soups, Pepperidge Farm® Goldfish Crackers, V8 Splash and Food Service products.

This program is a fantastic opportunity for schools to further learning during times of tight budgets.

It's a fun and exciting way to build a sense of community and purpose within our school that will enhance our children's learning environment.

For more information on how to be a part of Just Done For Fun's Campbell's Labels for Education Collection Drive, please contact Trudy Goode, program coordinator at Just Done For Fun at 335-8168, or drop the labels off at Ross Ford Elementary.

Prayer a way to amicable problem solving

Dear Family and Friends,

I should never argue with my wife. When we have 'disagreements' or 'confrontations' I usually lose. Even on those rare occasions when it seems that I've won, I lose because of the damage to our relationship. As a general rule, it is much better to resolve 'disagreements' amicably. All this to report an answer to prayer on Thursday. Graham (a short-term missionary who is stationed in Niger State) and I went to Abuja. I knew that we would face confrontations and difficult situations on our trip to submit the documents and forms needed for our quota document renewal. Therefore I prayed that I would have wisdom and courage. Also I prayed that God would give me the words to say.

At least three times we faced difficulties on our trip, and each time I had the words to say and the wisdom to choose what to do to get us out of the situation. Considering my track record with my wife, I'd say that God answered my prayers in a big way! I'm amazed at the way that God worked in my life so that the situations were resolved without a lot of anger and negative feelings. God answers prayer.

This week has involved a lot of hard physical labor. About 18,000 books and videos and magazines were moved from the library into three classrooms. Also all of the furniture, including the heavy bookshelves were removed, and the books replaced on them in correct order, mostly. Janet employed several students to help with the inventory, which was finished by Wednesday. Meanwhile several students started moving the books and sections that were finished. On at least three days we came home physically worn out. By three o'clock Friday afternoon, we were all finished; what a great feeling.

Janet is restricted in how much she can pay the students. Since the amount is quite small, she took the students for a bonus: ice cream at the Click Net cafe downtown. Of course, we had to go along and have some ice cream as well. Who says there aren't any perks in being in leadership? Several of the students who have helped weren't present when we went for ice cream, so we might have to make another trip and eat with them. Such hardships!

Two High School boys did the majority of the heavy work. These are guys that are often present when I lift weights with the Chaplain and the Baptist Business Facilitator. Therefore I know them a little bit. I've seen them push themselves really hard, trying to lift weights just as heavy as possible. It was great to work with them to move some very heavy shelves. Several times I was pushed to my limit as well. Many times I was perspiring freely. It's good for building relationships. We're planning to take them out for dinner at a local restaurant for their bonus.

While we were involved in moving the library, quite a few of the Hillcrest staff were leaving the country. My weight-lifting partners both left on Tuesday. Now they are in Greece or the States. However, we will be back in North America for a few months starting later. In the mean time, we are enjoying the mild climate and a little less work for the next week or so while the library is painted and re-carpeted. Then of course, everything must be moved back. That will be hard work again. And then School will start. Maybe we'll get away for a few days so that Janet will not work the whole time. I need to go back to Abuja to check on the progress of the quota renewal as well as the radio licenses. We are grateful for the opportunity to serve here in Nigeria.

Sincerely,
Dan

Compost Workshop
Workshop panned for Didsbury

There have been many rumours floating around Didsbury these last few months. What has happened to our garbage collection? Is the recycle center going to close? What can I do with all my yard waste?

The County of Mountainview Regional Waste Management Board has finally come up with a solution for handling garbage, but the increased cost has made it more important to recycle, reuse or reduce the waste we create.

The Didsbury Environmental Advisory Board (DEAB) has been endeavouring to keep the public aware of ways to reduce waste by backyard composting. If all organic waste, that is easily biodegradable, is composted it would reduce the waste stream by about one third. This figure becomes important when the disposal is charged by weight.

In order to make it easier to get into composting, if you are not already doing so, a Compost Workshop will be held at 16 Westheights Drive on Saturday, June 22, at 10:00 a. m.

Examples of small and larger scale composting will be shown and questions answered. Methods of preparing materials, and what types of materials may be composted will be shown. Uses for the compost will be illustrated and discussed.

Members of DEAB will try and answer any questions you may have related to composting and garbage in general, and can act as advocates to the town and the Waste Management Board.

Team cattle penning was just one of the events that local ranchers demonstrated their skills at during the sixth annual Ranchers Rodeo held in Carstairs.

Local ranchers participate at Carstairs Ranch Rodeo

Liz deGoesbriand

Under cloudy skies local ranchers participated in the sixth annual Ranch Rodeo in Carstairs.

Unlike rodeos that involve bull riders, bucking horses and barrel racers, these cowboys and cowgirls give a performance reflecting the everyday running of a ranch. The six different categories consist of: doctoring, branding, penning, loading, and cow-calf sorting, with a new twist put on the event a chili cook off.

Made up of teams consisting of four riders, they participate in timed events of the listed categories.

Over the past six years the Ranch Rodeo has become a landmark event in Carstairs. Spots in the events are filled without advertising. "It is usually past teams that come back," explains Debbie Sakariassen. But word is out what a good time this event is, bringing three new teams into the competition. Taking home the winning first place buckles is first time participants Renslip Ranch (for the record is Pilsner spelt backwards) - Jeff Robertson, Barclay Robertson, Kevin Sammons, and Dean Ness; 2nd place - Western Apostles - Einar Sakariassen, Garth Sheehan, Rod Morrison, and Don Sutherland; 3rd - Soderghen Ranches - Scott Lees, Elan Lees, Jared Sherman and Dwight Durie; and 4th place - Ghost River Ranchers - Trent Wirsig, Kyla Wirsig, Adam Sparling, and Gord Botham.

The first ever chili cook off was a huge success with each team entering their own secret recipe. Judged by Fireside Chef - Jim Lowey gave the winning dish to Ghost River Ranchers. Another new venue added to the event this year was Best Ranch Horse. All participants voted for the best all round ranch horse. The winner was Royale - proud owner is Barclay Robertson.

The day held something for everyone. Kids had their chance to win candy bags during a cow milking competition held during intermission.

Whether you were participating or a spectator, the days entertainment was worth riding out the wind and cloudy skies.

Focus on the Family

QUESTION: Why don't behavioral scientists see the important need for a father to be an active component in a son's life and report their findings to us?

DR. DOBSON: Behavioral scientists have only recently begun to understand how critical fathers are to the healthy development of both boys and girls. According to psychiatrist Kyle Pruett, the author of "Fatherhood" (Broadway Books, $13), dads are as important to children as moms, but in a very different way. Here are other surprising findings that have emerged from careful research on the role of fathers:

* There is an undeniable linkage between fathers and babies beginning at birth. * Infants as young as 6 weeks old can differentiate between a mother's and a father's voice.

* By 8 weeks, babies can distinguish between their mother's and their father's caretaking methods.

* Infants are born with a drive to find and connect to their fathers. As they begin to speak, their word for "father" often precedes their word for "mother." The reasons for this are unknown.

* Toddlers are especially obvious in their assertions of "fatherhood": they will seek out their father, ask for him when he's not present, be fascinated when he talks to them on the phone, and investigate every part of his body if allowed.

* Teen-agers express fatherhood in yet more complex ways, competing with their father and confronting his values, beliefs and, of course, limits.

For so many sons and daughters, it is only at the death of the father that they discover the intensity and longevity of their fatherhood, especially when it has gone begging. While children of all ages — both male and female — have an innate need for contact with their fathers, let me emphasize again that boys suffer most from the absence or noninvolvement of fathers. According to the National Center for Children in Poverty, boys without fathers are twice as likely to drop out of school, twice as likely to go to jail, and nearly four times as likely to need treatment for emotional and behavioral problems as boys with fathers.

Repeatedly during my review of the latest research for this book, I came face-to-face with the same disturbing issue.

Boys are in trouble today primarily because their parents, and especially their dads, are distracted, overworked, harassed, exhausted, uninterested, chemically dependent, divorced or simply unable to cope.

As indicated above, all other problems plaguing young males flow from (or are related to) these facts of life in the 21st century. Chief among our concerns is the absence of masculine role modeling and mentoring that dads should be providing. Mothers, who also tend to be living on the ragged edge, are left to do a job for which they have had little training or experience. Having never been boys, women often have only a vague notion of how to go about rearing one.

Boys are the big losers when families splinter. The National Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse at Columbia University found that children living in two-parent families who had only a fair or poor relationship with their fathers were at 68 percent higher risk of smoking, drinking, and drug usage than teens having a good or excellent relationship with dads.

By comparison, children growing up in a home headed by a single mother who had an excellent relationship with their fathers had a 62 percent lower risk of abusing substances than children living in a two-parent family with a fair or poor relationship with their father.

The influence of a good father can hardly be overemphasized. Dr. William Pollock, Harvard psychologist and author of "Real Boys" (Owl Books, $15), concludes that divorce is difficult for children of both sexes but it is devastating for males.

He says the basic problem is the lack of discipline and supervision in the father's absence and his unavailability to teach what it means to be a man.

Pollock also believes fathers are crucial in helping boys to manage their emotions.

As we have seen, without the guidance and direction of a father, a boy's frustration often leads to varieties of violence and other antisocial behavior.

Workers gearing up to give summer fun for local children

Erin Miles-Janzen

The lazy, dog days of summer may be just around the corner, but that doesn't mean your child will be at a loss for something to do - certainly not in Didsbury.

Starting July 2nd, eight weeks of arts, crafts, games, and activities await participants in this year's Summer Fun program.

Anyone ages six to 12 years-old can join. After registering, all you need to bring is your keen sense for adventure and your imagination.

"Each week we incorporate a different theme...sometimes it will be Star Wars, sometimes Medieval and so on.

We have a whole list lined up for the kids.

Everything we do that week - whether it's a craft or a game or a field trip will be tied to that theme.

"We're really looking forward to it," says Leader Katie Lutz. Lutz will work closely with this year's Summer Fun Coordinator Erin Miles-Janzen to organize and create many of the Program's activities.

Both women have extensive experience in working with youth and have been fully trained in this area.

Miles-Janzen, for example, spend 12 years working in the camping industry, seven of which were spent in top leadership roles.

"I have been an accreditor for the Alberta Camping Association which has kept me pretty up to speed on all the safety regulations involved with running these kinds of programs, including emergency procedures."

Lutz shares in the expertise. In addition to working as a camp counselor for at least three years, she also has extensive experience working with children on missions she has taken part in overseas. "There's so much we have lined up.

Anything from drama skits to swimming to baseball along with a whole variety of indoor activities too in case of bad weather."

Summer Fun runs daily between July 2nd and August 23rd from 9:00 am - 4:00 pm.

"Extended care hours are also available," says Miles-Janzen. "...the hours for those are from 8:00 am - 5:00 pm."

Anyone interested in registering their child for Summer fun is encouraged to do so before the early registration deadline of June 14th.

Additional charges will apply after that date.

For information call 335-7369.

New West Zion church leader follows God's calling

Uprooting one's family to move hundreds of miles and start a new job is a decision few would take lightly. Trevor Kiriaka is no exception - yet it was his profound belief that God was leading him to Didsbury to preach that convinced him to leave his home in Pambrun, Saskatchewan recently.

Kiriaka will be installed as the new Pastor at the West Zion Mennonite Church on June 23rd. "Both my wife (Phyllis) and I felt like this was the path we were intended to follow," says Kiriaka who left his teaching job at Millar College of the Bible in Pambrun that he held for the past six years.

Pambrun is a small country hamlet of approximately 50 people situated just south of Swift Current.

"It will be nice to just get back to civilization," jokes Kiriaka who - along with his wife - originate from Calgary.

Back at his old job, Kiriaka spent the past six years in the classroom of the Bible College teaching such subjects as Church history, Bible study and theology. "Now, I will be preaching about it," he says.

Although his official installation isn't for a few weeks yet, Kiriaka has already had the opportunity to preach a couple sermons. "I love it. It's wonderful just to have new experiences and interacting with the people...just rubbing shoulders with people again on a one to one basis."

Kiriaka will be taking over from Pastor Jim Miller who is currently working as an interim Pastor in Ohio. "I've heard a lot of very good things about Pastor Miller and am honoured to be taking over where he left off. It looks as though I have pretty big shoes to fill."

Kiriaka would like to thank everyone in the West Zion congregation for their hospitality and assistance in helping he and his family settle in to their new home. "We are living in the Manz right now just behind the Church itself."

The Kiriaka's have three children; Carson, 1 1/2 years, Kevin, 4 years and Alexandra who is six.

Trevor and Phyllis Kiriaka

Grade 7 & 8 students will dance out the school year

Grade 7 and 8 students will be looking forward to June 27th for more than one reason this year. Along with it being the last day of school, it will also mark the evening of their official "End to the School year" Dance.

"The last day of school is usually filled with excitement and anticipation for what lies ahead," says Parent Cindy Mawle. "...we're just hoping to be able to catch a ride on that wave of excitement and give them an event they can really have fun with together."

The dance will take place Thursday, June 27th upstairs at the Curling Club from 7:00 pm - 11:00 pm.

"The students were not going to be getting a student dance this year and were quite disappointed so we just thought we would get together and take the initiative on ourselves," says Mawle who is co-organizing the event with fellow parent Rochelle Byiers. Mawle has a daughter, Stacey Hull in grade 8.

Byier's daughter, Brianne is also in grade 8.

Included in the night's festivities will be lots of refreshments including hot dogs, pop chips and chocolate bars. "There will be lots of junk food for sale just to add to the excitement of the evening and West Trax deejay services will be on hand to take care of the music. It looks like another fun evening."

Tickets for the dance are just $5.00 and available to any student at Westglen School. "Students are allowed to bring one guest, but they must be pre-registered first."

"We have decided to open it up to homeschooled kids as well as those at Koinonia," Mawle adds.

Anyone interested in ordering ticket to the "End of the Year" Dance can call either 335-2356 or 335-8864 for details. All proceeds generated from admission will go towards covering the cost of the Dance itself. "Anything over and above that will be contributed towards the Didsbury Child and Youth Club."

Didsburian changes his garbage outlook

Garbage man will not pick up garbage at local resident's house

by Richard Westlund

Two weeks ago Didsburian Denis Seewalt was livid that his eight bags of garbage weren't picked up by the Town.

Two weeks later he has changed his entire outlook on his garbage situation, and has taken himself completely off of the garbage route in Didsbury.

Seewalt said during a spring clean up he ended up with more garbage than usual.

He went to the Town office and bought tags for the garbage. One bag, which he had filled with dry wall was not picked up.

While he was still steaming he came across an ad in a paper outlining the recycling centres in the area and realized most of what he was throwing out could be recycled by going through the bag that wasn't picked up.

Immediately Seewalt had a change in attitude and decided that he needed to take responsibility for his own garbage.

According to his calculations, when recycling as much of his waste as possible, he will be able to cut down from an estimate 12 bags of garbage per month to two.

He believes his initiative will reduce his waste to the landfill by 112 bags per year.

"Immediately I wanted to get down to zero garbage as fast as possible."

Seewalt was so committed to his project he requested that his commitment be reflected on his bill.

"I didn't want my money going towards trash pick up. I wanted it to go towards recycling," he said.

The first bag of garbage that Seewalt started to separate was contaminated because it contained blood from meat he bought at the store. Since then he has been aware of washing and preparing waste so that it is cleaner for recycling.

The effort of changing the way he handles his garbage comes at a price, but Seewalt believes in the big Denis Seewalt is turning over a new leaf concerning the management of his household waste. Through recycling he will divert nearly 112 bags per year away from local landfills. Seewalt is hopeful the initiative will help create a cleaner future for our children.

picture it is worth it.

He said it will cost him an extra $20 per month to take the two bags of garbage he has to the Olds transfer station.

And the effort of recycling will cost him an extra two hours a month.

"I think we need to take action now for our kids. It's bad enough that we are going to leave them water they can't drink and a sun they can't sit under, but to leave them a big mound of garbage as well ... If we just hold ourselves accountable to the garbage we create we can make a huge difference."

a sun they can't sit under, but to leave them a big mound of garbage as well

"If we just hold ourselves accountable to the garbage we create we can make a huge difference."

Seewalt said he has seen other advantages to taking his serious approach towards recycling.

He finds himself being a better example for his family (which has been extremely excited and enthusiastic about the project) and he said he is less of a burden on the Town.

When a tonne of garbage is disposed, the Town of Didsbury is charged $58. To get rid of a tonne of recyclables costs the Town just $8.

"If 20 per cent took up an initiative like this there would be a huge savings," said Seewalt, adding that the savings would allow the Town to explore better ways of handling other environmental impacts.

"We could become a model community for others," he said.

When the garbage collectors arrive at the Seewalt residence now they don't find bags of garbage.

What they do find is a small tree inside of a blue recycling box.

"It is a sign that says there is no garbage to pick up here," said Seewalt.

Olds College course will be taught by horse whisperer

An exciting new certification course, representing a first for both the college and its special guest instructor, is expected to draw equine enthusiasts from across the country. Canada's leading horse expert, "Horse Whisperer" Chris Irwin, has designed the comprehensive four-level certification program.

This "Train the Trainer" program is structured as a series of short courses designed to accommodate the time constraints of students and working professionals. Students completing all four levels will be proficient in the non-resistance training techniques designed by Irwin, who has attained international acclaim for his methods that earn a horse's respect and trust instead of breaking the animal through force and intimidation.

A recent Toronto Star article called Irwin a galloping success. "Within a few short years, Irwin has traveled from a Saskatchewan ranch to become one of the most pre-eminent practitioners anywhere of the art of gentle horsemanship. Irwin now spends most of his time teaching in the United States, where he has become a sizzling commodity in the American horse industry."

Irwin has lead several successful workshops at Olds College in the past, and college staff and students are thrilled to partner with him in launching his latest endeavour. Considered one of the most renowned trainers in the world, there is usually "standing room only" at Irwin's events and the college expects similar crowds at the inaugural course.

BUILDING DEDICATION

Dedication ceremony at Ag Mechanics Building at college

A recent special ceremony, involving Olds College executive, board members, staff, students and alumni, officially dedicated a wing in honour of Pat Burton.

Burton was an instructor, a manager, and a visionary in the Ag Mechanics program from 1962-1980. He lead the construction of the current Ag Mech Building (W. J. Elliott Building), which opened much larger than originally planned while remaining under budget.

During his tenure, Burton expanded programming in the department by moving the two-year Ag Mechanics program from SAIT to Olds College, by organizing the Ag Mechanics apprenticeship program and by initiating the Ag Engineering program.

To honour his years of influence and hard work, the east hallway of the Ag Mechanics building will officially become "The Pat Burton Wing".

To further acknowledge his dedication to students, a new Pat Burton Bursary has been established for first year Ag Mechanics students.

Applications will be judged on the financial need of students who apply.

Initial funds will be set up as an endowment fund, the interest from which will become the annual bursary.

Smith continues to lead calf ropers

by Barry Williams

Although Guy Smith's lasso has been quiet for a couple of rodeos, the Wimborne calf roper continues to lead the Canadian Professional Rodeo Association calf roping standings.

Smith, who has qualified for the Canadian Finals Rodeo five times, is having a career year pocketing $8,997 in earnings so far on the Canadian circuit.

In 1997 Smith was the Southwest College champion but he has yet to claim a Canadian calf roping championship during his ten year professional career.

Water Valley's Mark Nugent, the 1987 Canadian champion and Rookie Of The Year, sits in seventh place with $3,632 in winnings. The only Canadian roper to win over a half million dollars on Canadian soil, Cliff Williamson, of Madden, has filled his Wrangler jeans with $3,219 this season and is in tenth place. A four time Canadian champion, Williamson is $119 behind his brother, Tim Williamson, of Olds, with $3,219 in earnings.

Olds bareback rider Bill Boyd, a three-time Canadian champion, has relinquished his early lead in the standings falling behind Brook's roughstock competitor Robert Bowers, who has accumulated $9,243 to Boyd's $7,206. Bowers, a two event competitor, also leads the bull riding with earnings of $9,243 and heads the High Point award with a total of $17,733 in winnings. A three-time competitor at the NFR, Bowers won the Canadian bull riding championship in 1997.

After capturing the lucrative Cloverdale Rodeo in Surrey, B.C. during the long weekend in May, Big Valley bull rider, Kelly Armstrong, has moved into third place cashing in $8,442. At the Cloverdale Rodeo, Armstrong strung out a 91 point ride on Hat Trick to win over $2,000, his biggest win on the circuit in a few years. Armstrong has opened the chutes twice at the National Finals Rodeo (1997-1998). He missed the entire 2000 season after suffering a leg injury at the 1999 CFR.

Grizzlys will be concentrating on area talent

by Barry Williams

When the Olds Grizzlys open up training camp in late August, area hockey fans will be able to relate to the players.

At the Olds Sportsmen's Recreation Association Annual General Meeting held on June 4, 2001 at the Olds Legion, Head Coach and General Manager, Brett Cox, said, "The Grizzlys will make an honest effort to have local or area players in the line-up this season."

"Last season five players from the Olds area played on the team and I expect there will be the same amount or more area players on the team this season," added Cox, indicating he has been actively recruiting within the Central Alberta area.

Although it is hard to define local players, Cox believes players within a 60 mile radius from Olds can be classed as local talent.

According to Cox, his concentration on recruitment has been in an area from Red Deer south to Calgary and from Sundre east to the Three Hills area.

"This area has produced some very talented hockey players in the past and I would like to see some of them playing for the Grizzlys this year," added Cox noting he will make an announcement in a couple of weeks pertaining to the players he has signed from the area.

"Right now I am talking to several players in the area and I expect four or five of them to sign with the Grizzlys shortly," said Cox.

Some association members expressed a concern about the number of Olds' players playing for the Grizzlys and wanted to see the numbers increased, but Cox defended his selection of players indicating other local players have decided to play with other Junior teams.

Cox certainly believes in developing area talent and if a player has a better opportunity with another team, he will not stand in the way of giving a player every opportunity of playing Junior hockey.

Because of graduation and university signings, Cox noted the Grizzlys have some holes to fill in the roster this season but he is confident the players attending training camp will be able to fill the voids.

"We will be a very young team this year, younger than we were last year," Cox said.

"The players coming to training camp will be very talented and most of them are capable of playing Junior hockey this season," Cox added.

In reflecting on the past season, Cox noted it was quite successful on and off the ice.

"We were able to make it to the league semi-finals, but more importantly was the fact a number of players signed NCAA university scholarships and a couple decided to further their playing careers with Canadian universities," Cox explained.

Cox has an admirable record for his players attaining university scholarships. Amongst active Alberta Junior Hockey League coaches, Cox has enabled more players to sign scholarships than any other coach in the league.

According to Cox, playing hockey at the university level is another step in the player's development.

Former Grizzlys currently playing on NCAA teams include Mathew Yates, Colen Pappas, Dana Lattery, Tyler Brosz and Dave Erickson.

The most significant changes made at the recent AJHL league meeting were the restructuring of post season play and overtime. Starting this season the top six teams of each division will play in an opening round seven game series. Byles will not be given to the top two division teams. Overtime will see a change with the teams playing a four on four five minute period and if necessary a three on three five minute extra stanza.

A change in the CAHA interprovincial rules which will not allow players under 18 years of age to play hockey in another province will not have a major effect on the Grizzlys but could play havoc with other clubs such as the Fort McMurray Oil Barons.

"I really don't see any of the league or CAHA rules playing a major part with our club," noted Cox.

A league schedule has been drafted with play beginning in early September and wrapping up at the end of February.

Season tickets are on sale at the Grizzlys' office and anyone interested in volunteering can contact any member of the Grizzlys' executive.
